

TREXII

ABOUT TREXII

Trexii is the first Singaporean designer canvas toy, born in Singapore and manufactured in 2004. In 2024, Trexi will commemorate turning 20 years old. We designated it Trexii (double "i") and re-engineered the figure to a new shape, retaining the characteristic and neat "rotating head" function, to give it a fresh appearance. Trexii, the most recent name, represented its progress into a new generation.

A versatile canvas toy that can be customized in various styles by designers and artists using different mediums. Trexii is a stylish figure that embodies instant charm, individuality and is fun, contemporary, trendy, and inclusive.

Trexii speaks in multiple languages and rises above worldwide borders, coming to gatherings of people at all levels without any boundaries. This designer canvas toy could be a remarkable medium for different ideas and imaginations of the customers. It serves as an exceptional communication and branding platform—a energetic all-in-one bundle that meets all your needs.

Trexii is a Registered Design (Design Number: 30202400082P).

I AM TREXII

June 2004, born in sunny Singapore;
Trexii is my name!

You can make me what you like, even play a game!

Draw me as an animal, design me as a man, paint me as an alien, be all of these I can!

Mix and match my upper head, rotate my head one way, I could have a different face, it could change every day!

If you have a story, if you want to share, I can tell it for you, and that's because I care!

I'm a trendy, cool collectible, I'm customisable, super incredible;
I am your creative miracle!

TREXII – 6 STYLES

Trexii has 6 styles of different heads. The different heads allow artists and designers put on their creativity on Trexii, especially its unique rotating head feature that gives different expressions and designs. In 2004, only the round head is created. But along the way when we invite brands, celebrities, artists and designers to collaborate, they came back with suggestion of different heads. Hence, 5 more heads were added, making it 6 styles of different heads. Their names are: Classic Round Head, Square Head, Headphone Head, Ears Head, Slanted Round Head and Cylinder Head.

TOP STORIES 3

S'pore designer toys hit the big time

Creations catch the attention of even drinks giant Coca-Cola

By JEAN CHIA
SINGAPORE | He's got a big head, two fat feet and a butt that looks cute from any angle. And even though he stands just 6.5 cm, he aims to take the world by storm — like a true Singaporean.

Meet Trex — the toy controlled by some interesting limbs in a shaggy mane at the back of head. Quip.

Everyone loves him, it seems. And especially Coca-Cola, which has asked Trex's creators to produce a special version to market soft-drinks worldwide.

He may just look like a figurine with 360-degree joints and eyes in the back of his head — depending which way you rotate the top half of it.

But Trex means much more than that to the folks at locally based Play Imaginative. In fact, he's at the heart of their plan to make Singapore the toy-design centre of South-east Asia.

The company hopes Trex's success will inspire others to come forward with ideas. "We want to be the platform for local artists to show their works overseas," says Adrian Chew, 30, director of marketing and operations at Play Imaginative.

"We want to show that it can be done. A lot of people, especially students, have a lot of ideas but they don't know how to bring them to life. They don't know how to get their work out. It takes a lot to go from design to 3D."

It was a lack of Singapore-based designer toys that prompted Mr Chew and his Play Imaginative partners, business development director Jackie Tan, 34, and creative director Darren Gan, 26, to set up the company and conceptualise Trex in July last year.

The team wanted him to be a canvas toy that could be custom-made in a range of styles by different artists and designers.

But somewhere along the way, Trex's frame turned plastic. Which is just as well because it makes him more durable — and more marketable.

Coca-Cola, the Singapore Tourism Board (STB) and local street-wear fashion label 'Flash lang are the official partners of the launch here today.

For the first series of Trex — there will be four a year, according to the ve-ments — Play Imaginative has roped in international designer Gary Baseman, the man behind the toys Pin Water Bottle and the Disney film Teacher's Pet.

Coca-Cola spokeswoman Anne Kong said yesterday "it's great to see the ideals of Coca-Cola translated into this medium... The fun element, passion and creativity of Trex are qualities that Coca-Cola can identify with."

But Trex won't let anyone go to his head and end up forgetting his Singapore origins. STB has ordered two styles of "Uniquely Singapore" Trex, which it will use to promote the island as a tourism destination.

Play Imaginative also hopes to use Trex as the basis for an international toy event in Singapore. "Designers use Singapore as a venue but no shows in Singapore are put together by a Singapore toy firm," says Play Imaginative's Mr Tan. "You find that weird."

For now, however, the company is concentrating on getting Trex's name known. He's already being sold in 100 outlets in more than 20 countries — and they seem to be an international roadshow.

Which will surely make heads spin... just like Trex's.

Toy story: From left, Mr Tan, Mr Chew and Mr Gan. Their creation, named Trex, is at the heart of their plan to make Singapore the region's top-design centre.

An annual competition organized by the Singapore Polytechnic's School of Mechanical and Aeronautical Engineering, the Trexi Design Competition sees Secondary School students coming up with their very own rendition of Trexi. The competition proved to be hugely popular among the students, garnering an average of about 2,500 entries every year, since it first started in 2008.

With the youth participants showing an increasing level of concept originality and rendering skill with every year of the competition, Play Imaginative sponsored 10 inch Blank Trexis to each of the finalists from the 2011 Trexi Design Competition, to translate their winning 2-dimensional design onto a physical 3D platform.

PlayTimes takes a look back at the top 10 finalist entries of each year.

MDA appreciates the significant contributions and support it receives from its best of advisory committees. They provided valuable guidance to ensure that quality content is available, while raising the media literacy rates of Singaporeans.

MISSION AND VISION

We see, we achieve.

Media 21 envisions a vibrant, thriving Singapore into a Global Media City. We have a vision of Singapore becoming a media exchange, where media services, content and projects are created, financed, developed and distributed to the international market.

First of all, we seek to foster a conducive business environment for the growth of both global and local media companies. We encourage industry to innovate, develop and deploy cutting edge digital media services and products. At the same time, we nurture local media talent and help our enterprises internationalise. With the pieces of a thriving ecosystem in place, we catalyse the export of Made-by-Singapore content and services to the global marketplace. The goal: to generate $510 billion in Value-Added and create 10,000 new jobs by 2015 for Singapore.

There will be exciting times ahead as we leverage new digital and market opportunities in implementing Singapore Media Fusion 2015.

2024/2025 COLLABORATIONS

Artist/Designer

Trexii Design Concept:

The initial idea for this design was to have a black and white all over look with a stark contrast with the head. I wanted the brain in the top half of the head to stand out. The symbols and art all over the figure is part of my signature illustration style. The pink is the heavy contrast. I like that the box matches the figure too. For my first Trexii figure I wanted to test the company's printing ability and did something very detailed. Trexii made the figure and executed the design extremely well.

Artist/Designer Name

Wotto (USA)

Bio:

Wotto is an illustrator and character designer based in California, USA. Wotto grew up in England where he was inspired by street art, comic books and skateboard graphics. From these early influences he developed a distinctive illustrative style. Wotto's work has rich color palettes, unique characters with funny, sometimes ridiculous narratives. He has mastered the art of composition and can compose complex and detailed designs that keep his style recognizable and fresh.

Trexii Design Concept:

The Beast Vs The Skeleton was the theme I chose for this piece. I wanted a figure that could embody two concepts in one. The skeleton was an obvious choice because I draw them in a lot of my artwork. I opted for a Day Of the Dead style skeleton because I love Mexican Art. The Beast was a more cute traditional yeti sort of design. I liked the contrast of cute and creepy captured in one figure. Just like my first figure with Trexii, the team did a great job of capturing every detail.

Trexii Design Concept:

I've always loved neon signs and the stark contrast they create. For this Trexii toy I wanted to encompass that contrast using hot pink, blue and yellow against black as the color palette. I also wanted this character to use the spinning head feature of the Trexii figure. I did two types of eyes and two very different mouths. When the head is rotated it will make some fun facial expressions.

AIRWALKER by ADD FUEL is a piece that blends modern design inspired by the timeless elegance of craftsmanship; intricate patterns and fluid shapes of traditional ceramic ornaments. AIRWALKER captures the ethereal beauty of art in motion. AIRWALKER bridges the gap between the traditional and the contemporary, a walking dream that pays homage to the past while striding boldly into the future.

Artist/Designer Name

Add Fuel (Portugal)

Bio:

Add Fuel is Portuguese visual artist Diogo Machado (b. 1980). A former graphic designer, his artistic practice has been focused on reinterpreting and playing with the language of traditional tile design, and that of the Portuguese tin-glazed ceramic azulejo in particular. Blending traditional and contemporary elements, his original vector-based designs and stencil-based street art reveal an impressive complexity and a masterful attention to detail. Based on a combination of tessellations that create balance from symmetrical repetitions and visual illusion techniques such as trompe-l'oeil, his multi-layered patterned compositions create a poetic rhythm that plays with the viewer's perception and the possibilities of interpretation. He has been showcasing his work in both solo and group exhibitions since 2006, as well as participating in some of the world's leading urban art events.

Adam G (USA)

Bio:

Adam G calls his minimalist style of visual design "messymod," short for Messy Modernism. It's born from his love of geometry, patterns, negative space, Bauhaus, Miró and a little too much caffeine. He explores the spaces between art and design, complexity and simplicity, organic and machined, static and kinetic, familiar and surreal. Adam is the Co-Founder & Creative Director at TRÜF, a Los Angeles design studio specializing in visual identity and illustration. His design work spans from Adidas to Adobe and countless other companies and institutions in the arts, media, tech and finance, to culture and education. Currently, he's pushing his studio into new and strange directions with the addition of his illustrations and continues his unhealthy obsession with all things design. When he's not designing and illustrating, he's designing and illustrating. He needs to get out more.

FLYING FÖRTRESS' Trexii design is based on the classic first "red-blue-grey" Teddy Trooper release design. On this release he is bridging both series for both his existing collectors and also all new fans to be an appropriate part of his vinyl toy art universe. Combining the classic color-scheme with additional new and special "nose art" elements was to master the challenge of the remarkable Trexii figure sculpt. Even with the bruises and bullet holes from battles the figure still stands tall and strong - made to survive!

What's Gloomy?

Gloomy is Pity's pet bear. He's a little over 6 feet and weighs as much as 2000 pomegranates.

He's well trained for the most part, but he can never remember that he's not supposed to attack humans.

Still, a pet owner must take ultimate responsibility for his pets.

Recalling warm memories of Gloomy as a cute bear cub,

Pity tries to lead a life of peaceful co-existence with his pet bear.

Is Sonnie Stickers a bunny, or a girl? Who knows! But one thing is for sure...she LOVES stickers!! Sonnie collects all kinds of stationery and uses them all to decorate her TV helmet. Her creativity doesn't stop there, as she also sews all of her clothes and loves bringing around a tote bag of supplies. Sonnie Stickers can make anything cute!

While her fashion sense is loud and colorful, Sonnie is surprisingly introverted. She might seem shy at first, but will warm up to you if you start talking about arts & crafts. Sonnie Stickers spends most of her time looking at stickers, watching magical girl anime, and listening to her CD player.

Sonnie Stickers' favorite catch phrase:
"Creating is cute!"

This artwork depicts a chimeric creature with monstrous features, a vibrant tapestry of colors and shapes that defies easy categorization. Its multiple eyes, each a unique jewel of form and hue, grant it an otherworldly and expressive gaze. Simple geometric shapes clash with a riot of vibrant colors, creating a playful yet unsettling atmosphere. Viewed from different angles, the character seems to emerge from a dreamlike realm where the rules of reality are suspended. This mesmerizing and unsettling artwork invites viewers to explore the depths of their imagination and ignite a sense of wonder.

I paid close attention to the shapes of the Trexii platform, and what comparisons I could make with things I'm inspired by. Sea Monkey Trexii is a design rooted in symbolism, celebrating themes of family, life, and self-growth while reflecting the experience of growing up in a border town. Originally conceived in 2010, the character was intended for production but was shelved when the project was canceled at the last minute. Recently rediscovered in JEC's toy design archives, the concept was reimaged to reflect an evolved vision while staying true to its original intent. The updated design weaves fresh perspectives with deeply personal elements, celebrating resilience and transformation. It also features a few cleverly placed easter eggs, inviting collectors to uncover hidden details that enrich the story and enhance its connection to the artist's journey. Sea Monkey Trexii is a heartfelt creation that embodies JEC's personal growth and creative evolution. Through its symbolism and design, it invites us to reflect on our own journeys, blending nostalgia, creativity, and the celebration of life into one meaningful piece.
